APPENDICES

A. Historical Information about GRS

Information on the history of the Government Resources Section is taken from issues of The Docket, the newsletter of the Section.

The issue #1 of The Docket, Feb. 1974, reported that the first meeting of the Documents Librarians of North Carolina was held Oct 5, 1973. D.H. Hill Library at NC State University was the site of the all-day meeting, which included a talk by the Superintendent of Documents, Mr. W.H. Lewis.

On Dec. 5, 1975, the Executive Board of the North Carolina Library Association approved sectional membership for the Documents Librarians of North Carolina (DLNC). The focus of the group has always been to provide support and improve communication between government documents librarians and staff.

A major focus of the group in the early years was legislation to improve the North Carolina State Government Documents Depository System. This culminated in the passage of the "N.C. Documents Depository Act" by the General Assembly on 12 August 1987, N.C. General Statute 147.50.

The DLNC held an annual meeting in the early years, then began meeting twice a year in 1984. When the NCLA Biennial Conferences were held, the meeting took place during the conference.

The meetings and workshops included presentations on current topics of interest to documents librarians and staff. Workshops were held on specific publications, such as the Federal Register, agencies and the publications they issue, such as the North Carolina State Data Center, and issues in Documents Librarianship, such as tracing legislation, microforms, maps, and patents. This format continues to the present.

Joint meetings were periodically held with such groups as the Virginia Library Association Public Documents Forum, the South Carolina Library Association Documents Section, and other sections of the North Carolina Library Association, such as the Reference and Adult Services section.

When membership numbers are given in The Docket, the average is about 40—very similar to current membership.

With the Bylaw Revision of 1989, the name of the group was changed to the Documents Section. At the Annual Business Meeting, Nov 12, 2004, the Documents Section officially became the Government Resources Section of the North Carolina Library Association.

2. Each out-going GRS officer also transfers to the GRS Secretary/Treasurer the records of the officer's predecessor. Thus, each person currently in office should have records from the current biennium and the preceding biennium. All other records should be transferred to the GRS Secretary.
3. The Secretary/Treasurer weeds the predecessor records to those items deemed appropriate for archival purposes. These, along with the official records in the Checklist below, are sent to the NCLA Archive Committee.

Checklist

- Agenda and Minutes of Executive Committee Meetings, Section Meetings, and other Committee Meetings
- Treasurer's Report
- Agenda for Workshops and Biennial Conference Programs
- List of Officers and Members
- Copy of the GRS Bylaws
- One Copy of any Publication
- Selected Photos
- Screen Print of Section's Home Webpage

The purpose of the archival file is to give future GRS/NCLA members an understanding of what the Section was doing during past bienniums. Only 1 copy of any document need be retained, regardless of how many copies were turned in to the Secretary/Treasurer. Because of changes in technology, the file will be in print format when sent to the Archive Committee. If the Archive Committee requests a change in the format, this guideline will be updated. Once the file is completed, the excess papers should be shredded.
