Report to the Executive Board
July 30, 2010

The Executive Board of the Literacy Round Table met on July 27, 2010 to discuss projects for the biennium.

Conclusions of the deliberations follow.

- The Round Table website will spotlight a North Carolina literacy program every quarter. This feature will be launched in September 2010.
- Planning continues for two sponsored programs for NCLA 2011. One will feature a panel of discussants whose libraries have been awarded American Dream Starts @ your library grants. The other is a luncheon headlined by a noted children's author respected in family literacy circles for his/her body of work.
- With the approval of the Executive Board, the Round Table is submitting the request for the gubernatorial proclamation of North Carolina Family Literacy Day on November 1, 2010. The Round Table will produce a toolkit to be distributed to NC public libraries in observance of the celebration.
